

Recently returned from development/human rights/solidarity work overseas?

Check out the upcoming

Comhlámh Coming Home Weekend

Share your stories with like-minded people and explore how to stay involved now that you're back home. Good fun guaranteed!

All Hallows College, Drumcondra, Dublin

Friday evening 18 June to lunchtime Sunday 20 June 2010

Coming Home Weekends are residential weekends offering an opportunity to meet, relax and have some fun while sharing tips on readjusting to the 'culture shock' of being home.

There is space to reflect on the meaning of your experiences for you personally, and to look at planning how you can put them to use as you move forward. The cost of the weekend is €50 to people who have been overseas in a development capacity for longer than three months.

The weekends are facilitated by other returned development workers, supported by Comhlámh staff.

Contact stuart@comhlamh.org for booking forms and further information or at 01 478 3490 for more info.

PLEASE NOTE:

Participants are asked to bring something with them which reminds them of some aspect of their assignment, or the country of their assignment. One of the sessions will include describing these to the others.